"Bringing History and Local People Together"

Aims of the Society

The Society is a voluntary organisation established in 2010 by a group of interested people and is now recognised as a prime resource for local history in Kempston.

We aim to provide a forum and archive for Kempston local history in all forms of media including photographs and high definition video. The Society has its own website which holds a wealth of information and maintains a Facebook page.

We aim to develop relationships with local organisations where appropriate and currently work with Bedford Borough Library Service, Higgins Museum and Kempston Town Council.

There is a varied and interesting programme of talks and visits throughout the year. Look for details on our website.

New members are always welcome.

Why not join us!

Oral History Project

The Society has worked with the Bedford U3A Film Group to produce a series of high definition films of local people. These have been published on YouTube with links from our website.

Interpretation Boards

The Society has a long term project to install boards reflecting Kempston's history around the Town with funding from Bedford Borough Councillor's Ward Funds and The Harpur Trust.
